This proposal is not nearly strong enough or -restrictive- enough.

The problem here isn't whether or not the Windows operating system can or should put this icon here, there or even (GOD forbid) let you do it - that is just simply and plainly stupid!. The problem is the business practices of Bill Gates - this "proposal" does nothing, he will simply find a way around it or even ignore it - that is what he does; he's a shark and he eats what he wants...
